Living on the earth is rather like being at the bottom of a sea miles of miles deep. Without the atmosphere, there would be no people or animals, birds, fish, trees or plants. There would be no weather, winds or rain. And there would be no blue sky, no rosy sunsets or dawns.

Fire would be impossible without air, for burning is the union of oxygen with air. Nor would there be any noise, which is the vibration of air-waves against air. By day, the atmosphere serves as a great sun-shade. It protects the earth from the sun by absorbing most of its harmful radiation.

Finally, the atmosphere catches and burns up, by friction, practically all the particles that fall each day from outer space into the earth's field of gravity. If all these particles fell here, the earth's surface would be pitted and dented like the face of the moon. The atmosphere to stop them.

- (a) Write any two ways in which air protects us?
- (b) How is living on the earth like?
- (c) What serves as a great sun-shade?
- (d) What would happen if all the meteors fell on the earth?
- (e) Find the word from the passage which means 'wind'.
